WASHINGTON, July 7.—The White House telephone bill was run up thousands of dollars during the negotiations over the Hoover debt holiday plan.

GOLF STARS BATTLE FOR TITLE

The above photograph by the Associated Press depicts an exciting moment on one of the greens at Inverness course at Toledo while George Von Elm and Billie Burke battled to decide the successor to Bobby Jones as holder of the American Open golf championship. Burke finally clinched the title yesterday after being forced to play two extra 36-hole matches when Von Elm sunk long putts on the 18th green to deadlock the match. The two played 144 holes, the most ever played in an American Open tournament.

FORMER GALION MAN KILLED IN ICY CHASM

Robert K. Zinn Slides to Death; Hopes To Recover Athlete's Body Wane.

GALION, O., July 7.—Hopes of recovering the body of Robert K. Zinn, 21, of Portland, Ore., former Galion High school athlete, from a 1200-foot crevasse near the summit of Mount Ranier near Tacoma, Wash., waned today.

Parents of the young man have given up hopes of finding the body. It was revealed here today after Mrs. Clyde South of Galion talked to Rev. George E. Zinn, father of the man, at Portland over long distance telephone. Rev. Mr. Zinn was formerly pastor of the First Reformed church here.

Zinn slid down an icy incline to his death while attempting to reach the summit of Mount Ranier with a party of 11 mountain climbers. His brother Kenneth was in the party.

Kenneth told other climbers that when within 800 feet of the top of the peak, his brother complained of being tired and wanted to return. They sat down to rest and Robert started sliding toward the crevasse.

When Kenneth attempted to halt his brother's fall, he also started to slide toward the crevasse. His descent was stopped by Nelson Widman, a guide.

Zinn was well known in this section of the state, having played football on the Galion High school team in the North Central Ohio league. He was one of the outstanding gridiron stars developed by Coach Francis Eaton several years ago.

Rev. Mr. Zinn and his family resided here for several years until he accepted a call to a Portland church about a year ago.

MARKETS REACT ON WAR DEBT TERMS

Stocks React Generally on World Exchange; Drop Comes Later on Wall St.

By The Associated Press

In early trading today the New York stock market reacted favorably to news of the American-French accord on the Hoover debt holiday plan and stocks generally gained a point or more. Later in the day, however, the trend was in the other direction and losses about equal to the early gains were registered. Stocks on foreign exchanges were strong and moving upward throughout the day.

LONDON TRADING BRISK

Stock Exchange Has Busy Day Following Moratorium Agreement.

LONDON, July 7.—An echo of the "mad Monday" which followed President Hoover's original announcement proposing a moratorium on inter-governmental debt and reparations payments sounded through the European stock exchanges today as a result of the accord reached on that proposal.

Trading on the London exchange was brisk on a high level. Prices opened fractionally higher and continued to climb as the trading session advanced. The American section of the stocks list was especially active on the upside.

International Nickel shares were in good demand, while oils, mines and German bonds made substantial gains.

Circus Brings Tom Mix To Do Tricks for Fans

Thirty-three carloads of entertainment rolled into Marion at 8:15 a. m. today when the Sell-Floto circus, including Tom Mix and hundreds of other entertainers, pulled into the Pennsylvania siding at the Garden City pike crossing.

Sell-Floto is giving two performances here today on the Drake lot on east Fairground street. The first was at 2 p. m. and the final show is scheduled to begin tonight at 8.

It is the third large tent show to visit Marion this year. Both the Robbins Brothers circus and the 101 Ranch wild west show entertained large crowds in this year and night shows earlier.

Several hundred persons watched the circus unroll. From 5 a. m. until late this morning, curious motorists waited at the unloading grounds for the arrival of the circus. Sheriff C. C. Eyer and Police Chief William E. Marks, assisted by deputies, supervised traffic on the Garden City pike.

The circus came to Marion from Mt. Vernon where two performances were given yesterday. Its next stand will be made at Anderson, Ind.

Contrary to the practice of the two other shows visiting Marion this year, the Sell-Floto circus did not offer a street parade as a part of its program here.

Police Get Their Man After Chase Through Hotel Halls

H. E. Crafe, giving his home as Tulsa, Okla., is being held at police headquarters on an investigation charge following his arrest at the Hotel Harding today shortly after 4 a. m. while attempting to make an exit from the hotel by means of a rear window and a rain spout.

Crafe was arrested after a hide and seek chase by the police through the corridors of the hotel, on the roof and finally ending in an air shaft.

According to the police who had been watching his room from the opposite side of the street, Crafe was having a party in his room on the third floor of the hotel. When he became suspicious that the police were watching him, he left the room and crawled through a rear window, dropping to the roof of building adjoining the hotel. He was discovered by a patrolman, however, just as he was about to descend to the ground by means of a rain spout and at the command that he get back to his room, disappeared through the window. In appeared through the window in the meantime another patrolman had gone to the third floor of the hotel. Seeing the second patrolman bearing down on him, Crafe took to his heels, and the hide and seek game started which resulted in his arrest when he was found lying on top of a large pipe in an air shaft.

The police said he had no money. A long distance telephone call to Tulsa, Oklahoma, and charged to the hotel, had been put in by Crafe earlier in the night. A pint bottle partly filled with whiskey was also found in his possession, the police say.

Mellon's Pen Breaks
As Mr. Mellon started to affix his initials the pen broke at "A. W." and Premier Laval smilingly handed him another. When all was done Mr. Laval grasped Mr. Edge's hand with emotion and Mr. Edge replied with a "merci beaucoup." Glasses of champagne and orangeade graced the conference table.

The text of the agreement lists the following chief stipulations:

Tongee Man Is Meeting Crowds

The New Physicians' Medical Formula, Introduced at Stump & Sams, is Amazing Success.

Tongee, the great new physician's formula of nature's finest medicinal juices, for stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, and rheumatism is at its best in cases of long suffering where these ailments have hung on year after year. The Tongee Man, at the Stump & Sams drug store, Marion, is meeting large crowds every day and personally explaining this remarkable medicine.

First of all, Tongee is a great cleanser, and will cleanse your bowels (gradually—not drastic or severe) as they were never cleansed before, bringing out old food impurities that may have been inside of you for weeks, or even months, contaminating your blood and inner-organs, spreading this poison over your system in general and being the real cause of all along of awful headaches, blinding dizzy spells, completely exhausted feelings, unsightly skin eruptions, restlessness and sleeplessness, rheumatic and neuritic affliction and other forms of suffering that you never could account for. And, at the same time, Tongee has a great action upon the kidneys, liver and stomach, putting an end to old, ailing symptoms in those organs that had defied nearly everything else. This is not a tablet, or a pill, or a capsule, but it is a great liquid mixture of nature's finest medicinal juices, thus making up a medicine that has astonished community after community, and brought thousands of restorations to health in the larger cities of the Middle West. It comes to Marion for the first time.

Tongee is not intended to give mere temporary relief. It is not that kind of a medicine. Tongee goes to the very source of ill-health by working, in a natural way, on the important functional organs (the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels). Hundreds of men and women, everywhere, Tongee has been introduced, have said: "This is the medicine I should have had in the first place. And many drug and medical men have said: 'Tongee is taking the place of most all the older-known remedies'."

Get all the facts about Tongee. Ask questions. Look into the record of Tongee, and after taking a course of this medicine, follow the simple rules of health and you may never need medicines again. The Tongee Man is at the Stump & Sams drug store, Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Adv.

POST TELLS DETAILS OF RECORD FLIGHT

Famous Flier Tells Bashfulness To Relate Incidents of World Tour.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, July 7.—A bashful flier, for his record-breaking flight around the world, told the world that he had broken another record by overcoming his bashfulness about public speaking.

That accomplishment was not easy, he said, only after several days of flying did he feel that he was really a flier. He had been in the air for three days, starting Tuesday at 10:30 a. m.

At first Post answered the question with a brief reply: "I was not bashful," he said, "I was just a flier." He said he had been in the air for three days, starting Tuesday at 10:30 a. m.

They put in about 470 gallons and he couldn't take off at all. It took us about three hours to get the gas out of the plane.

Bingham gave Post and Gatty certificates of honor from the National Aeronautic association. The banquet closed a day of official and unofficial honors during which the fliers, their wives and F. C. Hill, banker of the flight, were guests of President Hoover at luncheon and of the National Press club at a large reception.

"Through With Marriage," Say Pair from Reno
By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, July 7.—Pete Arno, cartoonist, and Mrs. Florence Gence Smith were back home today with respective Reno divorces and avowed they would not marry each other.

Mrs. Smith, former wife of Spence A. Smith, New York broker, and daughter of Grantland Rice, the sports writer, said: "I never want to see a wedding ring again." Arno, whose marriage to Lois Long, writer, was also dissolved by the courts, told his version of the divorce with Cornelia Vanderbilt, Jr.

"Vanderbilt has a mania for publicity," Arno said. "He is now writing a play about Reno. He is a completely frustrated human being. His only satisfaction is when his name is plastered on front pages."

Arno denied any kissing episodes with Mrs. Vanderbilt, and said that he took Vanderbilt's threats lightly. There was no gun play.

"He said he was going to train with Jack Dempsey and fight me," said: "All right, I'll train with Jackie Coogan."

Mrs. Smith said she wanted company on the long train ride and was glad Arno was along. "We are good friends," she added.

By The Associated Press
PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., July 7.—A speeding automobile jumped the curb in Monticello last night, killed two little sisters, then careened down the sidewalk for 200 yards, knocking down posts before the driver got it stopped. He leaped out and fled into the woods.

While aroused villagers and state police were hunting the driver, Plattsburgh police arrested Alphonse Messier, who had been caught since Sunday night on a charge of reckless driving in the same machine. Messier denied he drove the machine last night.

Troopers believe the machine belongs to a rum runner. The two girls killed were Irene Lucia, six, and Marie Lucia, three.

DRAG RIVER IN HUNT FOR EVELYN WILSON

Believe New York Actress May Have Been Slain; Missing Since Sunday.

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK, July 7.—Marine police began dragging the Hudson river today on the chance that Evelyn Wilson, missing 23-year-old actress, might have been slain and thrown into the water.

A report that the young woman had been seen getting into a taxicab near her sister's home from which she vanished at 1 a. m. Sunday, is the only clue uncovered in the investigation of her disappearance. Roofs and cellars in the district neighborhood are to be searched by detectives also that part of Central park nearest her home, in the possibility that if murdered, her body might have been hidden.

Police were notified that Joseph Sheeran, of Jersey City, former fiancé of the actress, who is said to have broken off the engagement at the request of her family, was prepared to give any aid he could.

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Place your finger on your Adam's Apple. You are actually touching your larynx—this contains your voice box—your vocal chords.

From the report of a famous scientist who studied the effects of LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process—

"During the course of some recent investigations... we became interested to ascertain whether Ultra Violet Rays produced any change in the quality of the cigarettes. It may interest you to know that I was able to detect a very definite difference in the irritant qualities of the treated and untreated cigarettes. Several tests were made, not only on myself, but others as well, and we experienced little difficulty in selecting the treated or irradiated cigarettes as distinctly less irritating to the mucous membrane of the nose and pharynx than the control or untreated cigarettes."

Sunshine mellows—heat purifies—that's why LUCKY STRIKE'S exclusive "TOASTING" Process includes the use of modern Ultra Violet Rays. Remember—LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America that brings you the added benefits of "TOASTING". And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple". Be careful in your choice of cigarettes.

happy husband in the Jervis to jail. Mr. Jervis laughs at the idea and explained he had the monkeys ran it. Health of-

You can just feel the pain being drawn out and grateful comfort be-

Phone 2314.Daily Proverb—"Woe be to him whose advocate becomes his accuser."With the notes of a grind organ coming in from the street, there can no longer be doubt that summer is here.A Chicago woman has been granted a degree of divorce because her husband forced her to sit in the rumble seat of their car every time they went for a drive. If that didn't constitute fiendish cruelty on the part of the husband, what would?From Cherokee county, South Carolina, comes the story of a fall of hail so large that,
although the storm occurred six weeks ago, they get the heat of the summer sun. And yet a visiting Englishman has been telling us of America that we lack imagination.Two British cruisers visited Kiel, Sunday, and British and German sailors fraternized upon German soil for the first time in seventeen years. The war may be considered over, all right, saving and accepting, of course, the little item of meeting the bill for it.

Death Strikes Again.

Death has struck again in the national house of representatives, this time at George A.
Graham, eighty-year-old chairman of the judiciary committee. His death decreased the Republican membership to fifteen, one more than the Democrats claim five vacancies, three of them caused by deaths of Republican members and two of them by deaths of Democratic members, remain to be filled.The political significance, of course, is secondary to the loss sustained by the nation in Representative Graham's death. Like the late Nicholas Longworth, Mr. Graham was an eminent member of the house, whose importance was infinitely greater than that attached to a Republican voting member. He was thoroughly capable, he conducted the affairs of the judiciary committee in a satisfactory manner, and he was the dean of the house membership, a distinction which came to him after the recent death of Representative Henry Allen Cooper, Republican insurgent from Wisconsin.The possibility that the house may be organized for work quickly when congress convenes becomes constantly more remote with each succeeding change in its political division. One more death among the Republican members would make an equal division between Republicans and Democrats. It may require many weeks to elect a speaker and put things in running order.General Ludendorff sees the Hoover debt moratorium proposal as a plot of "the powers of a secret super state, an ungodly trinity composed of Rome, the Jews and the Free Masons," to draw Germany into another war next spring "under the camouflage of a preventive war against Russia." Even the gentlemanly bootleggers wouldn't think of selling Eric stuff which would tend to make him talk like that.Chancellor of the British Exchequer Snowden told the house of commons that Britain will make no further sacrifices to achieve the Hoover moratorium unless the other powers go along with her. Are we to take Philip as meaning by the term, sacrifice, that Britain will not stand for any more paring by us of the debt she owes us unless we at the same time cut down the war debts owed to us by other powers?

Neither Safe Nor Sane.

The observance of the Fourth this year can hardly go down under the classification of "safe and sane." Nearly 500 dead and many injured over the week-end was the awful toll of the sequence of the holiday and Sunday—a combination which unquestionably worked to augment the departure from safety and sanity.But, unlike the record of fatalities marking the Fourth in the past, this year's record shows that the deaths from fireworks were negligible. But six deaths are listed as having been due to fireworks, which is only a fraction over one per cent. of the week-end's fatalities. Automobile accidents and drownings were responsible for three-fourths of the toll, motor car accidents for 160 deaths and drownings for 181, almost double the record of last year.Death this year reaped his harvest chiefly from those of more advanced years than formerly. The youngsters manifested better judgment than their elders. The extreme heat no doubt added to the drownings and may have had its effect in the matter of motor accidents, but the vital factor was the reckless spirit of the age which leads to the taking of chances in defiance of what should be the dictates of judgment. If we are to have safe and sane Fourth's in the future, there must be a new campaign of education less devoted to those of minor years and more to those of major.

For More White Elephants.

A recent Washington dispatch is to the effect that discussion of European war debts has brought to the surface one of the plans, recently more or less submerged, looking to the settlement of the question the plan to which reference is made being the ceding to the United States by Great Britain and France, in partial or complete cancellation of the war debts they owe this country, of the islands they own off our Atlantic seacoast and in the Caribbean.Britain owns the Bahamas, Trinidad and Tobago, the Windward Islands, the Grenadines and St. Lucia, the Leeward Islands, Barbados, Jamaica and Bermuda, the aggregate area of which is 12,693 square miles and the population is 197,000. France has insular possessions in the Caribbean area Guadeloupe with an area of 688 square miles and a population of 230, 000, and Martinique, with an area of 355 square miles and a population of 250,000.American naval strategists do not claim that these islands in themselves constitute a menace to the United States, but they do claim that "their presence in the defensive zone of the Panama canal turns a position available only with the greatest difficulty by a European navy into one more readily attached."As long as eight years ago, James A. Reed, then senator from Missouri, introduced resolutions requesting the President to approach Britain and France regarding the ceding of these possessions to the United States, but nothing came of the resolutions. Those who at that time opposed any plan looking to our possession of these islands, as those at present opposed still do, offered two serious objections in addition to the natural reluctance of Great Britain and France to give them up.
One objection was the seeming inability of the United States to govern alien peoples. The Philippines were cited eight years ago. The Virgin Islands might also be cited now, the people of which were seemingly happy and contented under Danish rule and have been unhappy and discontented since the islands passed to this country.The other stumbling block—and it's amazing how often and in how many different ways and places it pops up—is prohibition. As frankly stated by one British statesman, his country would never consent to "selling any of its subjects into the slavery of prohibition." This latter objection might be obviated as it is in the case of the Philippines, which are not held subject to our Constitution, but the status of the Virgin Islands would be far more likely to obtain under present day conditions and congressional leaning in lawmaking in regard to prohibition.In other words, the case of the opponents of the idea of gaining these British and French islands is that, while they might prove assets in time of war, they would be sure to prove liabilities in time of peace, and that our times of peace are far more prolonged than our times of war.To be frank about the matter, the island possessions we already have have very largely proved white elephants on our hands.Dictator Stalin in his latest public pronouncement advocated a new soviet Russian wage based on the worth of the individual worker. Won't this come pretty near knocking the blocks from under the "equality" of which the bolshevik leaders have been prating?An appeal, signed by 1,200 members of the People's lobby, urges President Hoover to call a special session of congress to appropriate a fund of $3,500,000 for the relief of unemployment. Can it be that they actually feel that there isn't enough grafting upon the workers of the land as it is without offering further penumbras for idleness?

Killed with Kindness.

Another wall from Arkansas. This time it tells us not of starving children, dying livestock and dangerous shortage of all things necessary for sustaining human life and happiness, but a story growing out of that story.Senator Robinson and the lesser leaders who stated the case for Arkansas with such eloquence when drought relief was the issue worked not wisely but too well, according to the new story. "Some of the state's native sons, in their zeal to secure aid for drought victims have overshot the mark," one newspaper says. Another puts it this way:"Damaged by drought and financial difficulties, misrepresented by exaggerated stories of starvation and misery, Arkansas can only stand its ground, keep a stiff upper lip, plant and tend its crops, keep the wheels of industry turning and pray. Lord, save us from our friends."As an example of the kind of thing that stirred resentment in the breasts of patriotic Arkansas citizens, the food trucks sent for their relief by groups of compassionate citizens in other states are recalled. These trucks, it will be remembered from stories at that time, bore banners proclaiming to all and sundry that here was help for starving Arkansas.
In the opinion of level-headed residents of the state, it was a tactless kind of charity. The publicity did as much harm as the food did good.There is a resemblance in this to another soul-satisfying manifestation of America's charitable spirit—the ebullition of helpfulness during the World war. For that, too, the helpers received only sneering thanks. The plead-ers' massed eloquence as in the case of Arkansas, was so great that it smothered common sense. America seems just too goodhearted for any use.

Vagrant Verse.

OUR NEW HERO.
The soldier in the trenches,
Was a hero, we allow,
But it's time to start another Kind of hero worship now.
We must recognize the bravery Like the boldness of the 'gob'
Of the man who keeps the fight up When he's left without a job.
Let us start another roster
In the great, bright 'Hall of Fame'
And upon the latest tablet, Let us write the shining name Of the man who's not a beggar
And will not stoop to rob.
But maintains a standard manhood.
Although he's lost his job.

From Our Readers.

SOME DOCTORS OVERLOOKED.
Editor Star: I have just finished reading Dr. Copeland's fourth and final communication. I am sure from his idealistic viewpoint we will ultimately have an ideal hospital just as he proposes the same.This is the doctors under the direction of our medical director have accomplished much, and we recognize our hospital by the American College of Surgeons is in sight for all to see. Personally I am not a doctor, but I have seen many of the doctors asked and answered, although I am an active member of the College of Surgeons since its organization May 4, 1913.The great upward trend in medicine and surgery began about fifty years ago when the so-called Antiseptic era was rapidly followed by the aseptic era of our present day.An other upward trend demanded by our advancing civilization was organization of the medical profession, exacting better medical college, better preparatory education, etc. Dr.
Lancet, Dr. Robert Morris, Dr. H. B. Sands and Dr. Vincent of New York City brought to our shores the advance art in surgery and medicine. These doctors practiced medicine in all its branches with proficiency and highest skillful technique.In Chicago, Dr. Nicholas Senn, who conducted the most advanced surgical clinic in the world at old St. Michael, at the same time was aided by Dr. Christian Fenger and others, in fact the first of surgeons everywhere. Among them Dr. Sam Gross, Keen, John B. Deaver, Agnew, and other surgeons in our large cities were interested in the advance of surgery and medicine. This was some of the Nestors who gradually prepared the way to a higher and better standard.The object of the College of American Surgeons briefly stated by one To elevate the standard of surgery and to include within its frank lip all who are worthy and well qualified, who possess a practical knowledge of the science and art of surgery and medicine.A secondary object, of course, was the betterment of hospitals in general. From the very start no fee-splitting doctor nor one who does unnecessary surgical operations or is of unsound mental and moral make-up can become a member.I was pleased in perusing the recent published comments in the Daily Star on the staff and chief, as they relate to our hospital and surely we ought to give it our support, hoping our city council will take up the question as presented by Dr. Sommerstrand and Dr.
Mousser and their chiefs, Drs. Mabie, Sawyer and Altmeier. These men mean well, but have overlooked some really important members of the medical profession in making their appointments. Dr. Frederick Smith is looming up fast as a coming surgeon of Marion, the Ohio state guarantees his fitness and qualifications. Because he conducts a successful clinic should not debit him from the hospital staff appointment.Another oversight should be corrected. Dr.
J. G. Seiler, a well-qualified doctor of medicine, is practicing in the state of Ohio since his graduation from the Cleveland Ohio Homeopathic Medical College, 1882, has been my anaestheticist since 1886. No local doctor has had more experience and skill. Ask any one if he is not competent as the best. A finer civilian gentleman can not be found anywhere.
Can you have off such a charming and efficient doctor from appointment on the Marion City Hospital staff? Well, we hope not.

PIESS WRECKED CAPONE.

The defense is now having its day in court, and an absolute acquittal is assured. One witness has testified the many who have appeared against the defendant. The case is that of the press, which stands charged with promoting lawlessness and crime by the publication of sensational crime news.Oddly, it was none other than Al Capone, the notorious Chicago gangster and racketeer, who saved the day for the newspapers. Or, rather, the newspapers saved themselves by calling the king leader as a witness in their behalf.Why does Capone stand today a confessed violinist of several federal laws, awaiting an inevitable penitentiary sentence? Because the front pages of the newspapers have been filled for months with the sensational stories of his operations. As a public prosecutor puts it, the newspapers, merely by printing the crime news, shamed the officials into scattering the Capone gang and stripping its leader of his power.Is there any one so fatuous as to believe that Chicago would have routed the Thompson gang depriving Capone of his protection, or that the federal authorities would have stepped in to break the back of gangland, if there had been no crime news to present the shocking facts to the public and to place Chicago in a national disgrace?—Frederick News.

HOOVER'S DEBT PLAN

Heartburn Is Common.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Heartburn is a common complaint. I think it is more frequently heard of among Americans than the citizens of other lands.
This is explained by our methods of living, of course. Europeans differ markedly in their mode of living. We are more prone to rush than they are.The morning begins with a rush that continues throughout the day. The average American would not dream of taking an hour for his midday meal. The European would never take less.Normally, the gastric juice content found in the stomach contains about one-half per cent. hydrochloric acid. This is rather a strong percentage, but it is normally neutralized by the food, as well as the alkaline secretion of the pancreas found in the intestine. This serves to decrease the acidity to about one-fifth per cent. acid.If for any reason the food does not pass out of the stomach in normal time, no alkaline secretion is received from the intestine.As a result there may be a disturbance of the stomach, causing some of its liquid content to be ejected upward. This reverse action causes a burning sensation, commonly spoken of as "heartburn."Heartburn is likely to occur where there is any kind of digestive disturbance. Rapid eating is one of the most frequent causes. In order to insure proper digestion, we should thoroughly relax and eat slowly.Many persons are the victims of habit. Lack of appreciation of how to eat is one of the bad habits. Bad eating habits are easily acquired but more difficult to discard.
The giving of bicarbonate of soda will relieve heartburn. This is brought about merely because it neutralizes the acid of the stomach.It is better to remedy heartburn by being more considerate of your stomach. Never eat in a hurry. Do not gulp your food. Chew slowly and carefully each morsel before swallowing it.In general, avoid all fried food, greasy and rich substances. Make the medicine an agreeable part of the day.

Inherited Character.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the great problems of biological evolution is that of acquired characters with reference to inheritance. Ever since the time of Lamarck, biologists and evolutionists have sharply divided on the matter. Lamarck tried the experiment of cutting off the tails of rats.
As the new generation came along he cut the tails of all of them. This process he continued for a number of generations. But as far as he went, there was never the slightest sign that the new generation would be tailless, or, indeed, that their tails were shortened by even the tiniest fraction.Charles Darwin was a believer in the inheritance of acquired characters. Indeed, he believed in this principle as essential to the growth, development and evolution. Not to believe in it is to realize the essential futility of all training, so far as the race as a whole is concerned. With each individual the struggle must begin all over again. It is an eternal cycle of defeat, the dead live in their children biologically only, not creatively, in the sense of passing down the ages both all that they are and all that they have become.One of the brilliant thinkers of today, although wholly unacquainted in his modes of thought, is George Bernard Shaw. He is a confirmed believer in the doctrine of the inheritance of acquired characters. He has recently declared that the child whose father or mother was an expert cyclist will learn how to ride a bicycle far more quickly and readily than the child with parents who have never cycled. Unfortunately the scientific tests and experiments of all sorts have been for the most part inconclusive. The majority of biologists and evolutionists today, it is safe to say, do not subscribe to the doctrine of the inheritance of acquired characters.Some recent experiments, by a number of biologists, have begun to lend considerable support to the theory. Recently Dr. E. W.
McKendrick in an address before the Royal Institution of Great Britain, contended that habit was the driving force of evolution. He agrees with Darwin that through man's inheritance of acquired habits, natural selection operates to produce the variety of biological races. If evolution goes on at all, then the powers of growth of one generation must become altered as compared with those of a previous generation. Change of habit produces change of structure.Dr. McKendrick, who is professor of biology at the Imperial College of Science, argues as follows:Just as in development the whole dominates and directs the growth of the parts, so in reaction to environment the whole animal enters into the reaction and every part is coordinated with every other part. When a lion springs on its prey every muscle comes into action.If we make the reasonable assumption that every such action has a reciprocal effect on the muscle, and that there is something in them which is given forth when the action is repeated, and which accelerates and strengthens it, then we can make a provisional picture of the modus operandi of the inheritance of habit.
For since all nuclei are potentially alike, any one of them may become a germ cell if it finds itself in a proper position for developing an egg, and the nuclei of germ cells like the nuclei of other cells, will receive the aftereffect of the animal's action. Copyright,

First Battle of Bull Run.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

Seventy years ago the first battle of Bull Run was fought, the first engagement of the Civil war. An Ohio man a native of Columbus, General Irvin McDowell, was in command of the 20,000 Union troops. The First Ohio Infantry was in the engagement, but saw little fighting and suffered no casualties. The confederates, however, in covering the retreat of the union forces in which the battle resulted.It was Sunday. The North confidently expected an easy and complete union victory. Official Washington took carriages and drove to the vicinity of the field, some thirty miles southwest of the capital, to view the engagement, much as they would go to a sham battle.
All over the country in the North people gathered about bulletin boards to hear the victory news.McDowell planned to open the battle at daybreak. His four divisions were to move to Sully's ford where he was to cross in the night, but Burnside and other division commanders felt that they could easily cover the distance in the early morning and it would be better to let the men sleep where they were.
McDowell reluctantly assented. But the soldiers shivering in the holiday feeling, stopped to pick berries and eat the red apples and corn-cobs by the way, so that the farmer folk were on their way to church as the troops moved down the dusty Virginia roads, and it was 10 o'clock when the ford was reached and Bull Run crossed.For several hours McDowell's plans, though delayed, worked out perfectly, and it seemed that he had Beauregard whipped. But confederate reinforcements rushed up, Stonewall Jackson, who that day earned his fighting name, among them, and with spirit restored the confederates rushed at the union lines with such impetuosity that McDowell's untrained men broke and ran. Ten minutes' time saw McDowell's condition change from apparent victory to utter rout and defeat.Official Washington dashed back to the capital, barely keeping out of the way of the disordered army. The firm stand of the units set to cover the retreat was the redeeming feature of the day, and the union side, and prevented the confederates from further pursuit. That night gloom settled down on the loyal people everywhere in the North.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MINTYRE.

New York, July 7.—Joe Lebling, one of the oddest human anomalies Broadway turned out, is being missed more than along the sagging Hialeah. From obscure theater the play with the title "Joe Lebling" to Lebling a show was to slash profits the theater, and often turn the tide.While known as the king of the ticket brokers he was far more than that. He was a backer of hundreds of shows, a theater and the most alert theatrical promoter in the town. When a show today, it goes speedily to Can't's theater warehouse.But when "Able's Irish Rose" was considered a "Turkey," Lebling started it amazing run. He did the same thing for critically panned "Rose Marie." Along many others too numerous to mention.
A number of producers owe their success to Lebling.He was a modest fellow. Now and then would receive postcards from him from Paris or France and his greetings were written "Just a thought of you—no postcard please." Starting in a corner cigar store, he built up a corner cigar store a $200,000 fortune.He gave heavily to charity and much of his vast estate went to worthy humanitarian enterprises. In the beginning he bought ter passes that tipsters used to exchange with small tradesmen for sticking around and the upward and downward developed his big idea.His first stand was on Sixth avenue then he took desk space in Gray's drug at Forty-Third and Broadway. Eventually bought the entire building, the George Cohan theater next door and finally the Broadway block. This was, however, one of his real estate ventures.When a show began to droop, products of France and the biggest list of requests came under the drug store. It is still one of the sights of the metropolis. Its activity suggests the milling and jostling of the Stock Exchange.
Twelve policemen keep crowds in line.The private elevator for dogs has been introduced by the Croymen in east Eighth street. When tenants wish to air the paws they zip a special elevator button. The operator notifies the operator a dog and man and sends the dog and man up to the top puppy no other passengers are taken on.

Desire To Do Big Things Has Been Spur to Success for Wiley Post

This is the fourth in a series of eight installments in a life story of Wiley Post, world famous pilot, written by Leon H. Durt of The Associated Press feature service. The previous installment told how farm boy Wiley Post learned to fly in the hard school of wing walking and parachute jumping in small town "air circuses."

(Copyright, 1931,
by the Associated Press)

HE always wanted to do big things.

Perhaps this short sentence sums up as well as any other the motive, the driving power, which urged Wiley Post, farm boy-mechanic, toward realizing his boyhood dreams.

Once Wiley had acquired his own plane, he set out to learn all he could about flying. He never missed an opportunity to get into the air. He tried everything he heard of for a plane to do, and apparently when he was sailing through the clouds he thought out the half-formed ideas which had taken root back in the days when he first read of the Wright brothers' experiments at Kitty Hawk.

Wiley never kept a log book until about six months ago. He can only estimate the hours of flying he has to his credit, but on long summer days when he was barnstorming he recalls that many a time he flew from shortly after sun-up to sun-down, carrying passengers off improvised landing fields in southwestern pastures.

His Meeting With Hall

When Wiley had been flying a few years he heard that F. C. Hall, an oil man and an associate of Powell Buscoe, whom he had known in Chickasha, was interested in flying. He went to Hall and asked for a job as pilot.

"I gave him a job," Hall says.
"I even helped him with his license. Before he went to work for me he never flew a real good ship. But the Winnie Maes—all my planes have been Winnie Maes—were just to his liking."

Wiley had an added incentive to go after the job with Mr. Hall. On June 27, 1927, he had eloped in his airplane with May Laine, pretty 17-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Dave Laine of Sweetwater, Tex.
They had grown up together. For a while his wife barnstormed around the Southwest with Wiley, but a steady job with a steady salary was much more preferable to a married man.

Wiley served as personal pilot for Mr. Hall for some time. Once, down in Texas in 1929, near Lubbock, their plane nosed over and was badly damaged. "I was kind of scared," Hall says, "but nobody was badly hurt."

Goes to Coast

The oil man sold his plane, however, and Wiley was without a job.
There was another place waiting for him on the Pacific coast.

Wiley had taken a plane to Burbank where the Lockheed aircraft factory is located. He flew the ship around California until he sold it for the company. The aircraft company officials liked the quiet, competent pilot and told him if he ever needed a job, one would be waiting for him at Burbank.

For a little more than a year Wiley was chief test pilot at the Lockheed factory.

A friend in Washington, D. C., says that Wiley knows more about that type of plane than any other individual now.

A test pilot's job calls for competence in many phases of flying.
It is admittedly one of the most difficult jobs in aviation, but Wiley took it in his stride as he took the other steps in his career. It was his job and he did it.

Russell Pecht, superintendent of the aircraft factory at Burbank, says Post was as silent on the coast as he is credited with being in Oklahoma. Once when the pilot made a record flight from Seattle to Los Angeles with four passengers aboard, Pecht recalls that while the passengers were elated over the trip, Post "didn't seem to think much about it, and said only 'It was a nice trip.'"

new How to Prepare

Evidently Post had much the same feeling about his world jaunt.
He wanted to go from New York back to New York via of Berlin, Moscow and certain other points.
He knew he must make careful preparations. He realized he would need gasoline, oil, maps and weather information. Once he had these

PUTS BABY'S "BRAND" ON MOTHER

In order to preclude any such embarrassment as followed in the wake of the Watkins-Bamberger "switched baby" case in Chicago, a Brooklyn, N. Y., hospital has instituted a novel plan whereby there can be no possibility of mistaken identity in the nursery. A doctor and nurse are shown "branding" her initials on the arms of Mrs. Esther Danze with the use of a stencil and ultra-violet ray machine. The same initials are put, in similar fashion, on the back of the infant a few moments after birth. The unburned initials are visible for about 10 days, but can be brought to light any time within six months.

Spray Hair with Atomizer To Aid In Preserving Wave

BY JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON
RECENTLY while writing an article about atomizers and their various uses in the beauty world I had an idea which subsequent testing proved worthy of mention.

Atomizers, as you all know, make the finest possible spray of liquid, making it possible to apply moisture on a particular surface without producing an actually wet state, unless, of course, the spray is directed toward the one spot for too long a time.

In resetting a wave at home, one of our greatest problems has been to add sufficient moisture to press the hair into trim lines without getting the hair so wet we lose the contour of the original wave.

Keeping the Wave
A comb dipped in warm water and then run through the hair has been the best plan we've had to offer until today, but even though that method helped it wasn't the perfect method we've been trying to find. Often the contour of the wave was so dim that the slightest combing of the hair with a wet comb destroyed it and then we had no guide line to follow.

But, if you will try the atomizer in the way I'm going to suggest, I think you'll be delighted with the results.

Comb out the hair so that all snarls are gone and then, following the outline of what little wave remains, push each wave into place as nearly as you can. Secure the waves with combs or hairpins, accentuating the ridge of each wave a little so that it will be deep enough when dry.

Plain, warm water may be used in the atomizer or you may use a waving fluid. If the latter is preferred it must be diluted with warm water because the full strength is too heavy for satisfactory spraying with an atomizer.

Having set the hair and filled your atomizer, spray the hair until it is damp all over but not really wet. Then, pinch the ridge of each wave a little, once again accentuating it so that the contour of each wave will be definitely outlined.

If you have used combs for holding the wave in place this second outlining of the wave will not be necessary but with only hairpins to hold it, I think you'll find it helpful.

After spraying the hair, adjust a net so that the waves will remain in place and let the net remain on until the hair is dry.

So far I've found the addition of one tablespoonful of waving fluid to one cupful of warm water the most satisfactory fluid for resetting a wave in this fashion. However, if the wave is only slightly marred, plain warm water will be enough.

"I looked at my watch and saw I had plenty of time, so I hustled back. As I was unlocking the door I saw something shining on the sidewalk. I picked it up and it was a Masonic watch charm. Of course I knew it was Martin's and I didn't even put it in my pocket thinking that in another minute I would hand it to the old man.

"To him it was a treasured emblem—a gift from his friends that he always carried with him. The spring in the catch was weak, and I suppose it had come loose when he stopped at the door to the bank.

"That side entrance to the bank opens into a hall; on one side is the main room; on the other the offices of the president and the cashier. As I passed the cashier's office I noticed the door was open about an inch, and the light on. I pushed the door wide open. There was Campbell, our cashier, just about to put a package of money into a small grip.

"Then he saw me, and I knew by his actions what he was up to. He was getting away with the bank's cash and I had caught him in the act. Didn't either of us say a word—then he jumped me. In the tussle, which only lasted a second, I managed to throw him across one corner of a heavy table in the center of the room.

"He hit it pretty hard and I guess it must have hurt his back. Anyway as he fell his head hit on the base of the big swivel chair in front of his desk. I saw he was knocked out, but I never dreamed he must have been in the vault getting out his books because he evidently hadn't heard a thing, and from behind the counter, where Martin worked he couldn't see the door of the cashier's office. I realized the situation in a flash. There was that bundle of money! I just grabbed it, slipped out of the door and to the depot just in time to catch my train to Camden.

Jubilee's Partner

A Story of Humorous Boyhood Adventure
By JUDD MORTIMER LEWIS

THIS was Tuesday, and I left all the upstairs windows open all night because it was so warm. A fella don't have to get up before daylight in the summer to milk the dummed brutes, because it gets daylight before he gets up. The days are longer in summer because the nights are shorter. That don't seem like a good reason to me, but it is that way. I am not shorter because my father is longer, and my grandfather is not fatter because my ant is skinnier. I guess making the days longer because the nights are shorter is the weather man's fault.

When I went down to milk the cows after I had let Jubilee down, and when the blinch came Peanut's was with them, and he had hung all the things that belong to him and wanted us to run away from home because his father had licked him for tying the bunch of fire-crackers to the cow's tail. He had a dictionary his mother had gave him for school work, and that was all that belonged to him. He said he brag it because all the boys that he had heard about that ran away from home carried a Bible—their mothers had gave them, and kept it all their lives, and if anyone shot at them the Bible stopped the bullet, but his mother had never gave him a Bible, and anyhow a dictionary ought to stop a bullet better than a Bible, because it has got harder words in it. I told him he was crazy to run away from home after he had got a licking, because if a fella was going to run away from home at all he ought to do it before he got his licking.

Feeble told him that he would run back home faster than he ran away, and then he would get another one, so he hid the dictionary up in the hay and went with us to get the cows out. I told him I wouldn't run away from home because somebody's else father had licked somebody else. Feeble said, "Of course he wouldn't Peanut. You needn't think Thomas Aristides is a fool just because he looks like one." It sounded like a dirty crack

"Heart of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Noel exploded wrathfully. Lillian's glance followed mine, and she gave me a warning nudge. "Better shorter up that round," she advised, "and get Noel away before he explodes. I'll double for the purpose of going over the three acts of my play which he supposed were finished. He frowned as he looked searchingly at her. Then his face took on a thoughtful expression, and he looked off into space as if weighing the pros and cons of the question. And then at last he struck one hand against the other and smiled charmingly at us.

"Veritena's 'Family'."

"Needs must," he quoted with a pointed look at Lillian. "And I'll bow meekly to the yoke. What is the earliest hour you will be free to receive me?"

"Three o'clock," Lillian replied promptly and unblushingly. "We have a late luncheon."

"That will give us very little time before dinner," Mr. Veritena started to frown again and then thought better of it. "So be it," he intoned finally. "I shall be on the doorstep exactly at three."

"And we'll draw the latch to the second," Lillian answered promptly, and I knew she was glowing over the additional time she had managed to secure for our strenuous endeavor to get the third act in shape for Mr. Veritena to see.

"Thank you," he said a bit dryly. "It will be necessary for you to be prompt if we're to get anything done. And now, I think I shall collect my family and go on to the hotel."

"Your family?" Lillian echoed, wrinkling her nose at him. "That go and tell me, Phil that you're contemplating matrimony?"

He laughed easily with the indulgence he always gives Lillian's rallery.

"You know, my dear, that unless I can poison my husband conveniently, I never shall marry," he said, and left up upon the early morning toward the other end of the room where Dicky and Harry Underwood were dancing with Avis Arlen and her mother. This was the order, I told myself, in which anyone would refer to the two strangers. The daughter had a stronger personality though a more disagreeable one than her mother.

Lillian made a little noise at his retreating back.

"Phil may not feel old," she said, "but his line is a bit hoary over the temples. But come along, let's get along with him. I want to be near by when he collects Noel, don't you?"

"Indeed, yes," I echoed, with a surreptitious look toward the corner where Mary and Noel stood facing each other like fencea on guard. Rather Mary was on guard, for she was silently watching. But Noel was visible, with fully so and the look on his face

Court Cases Increase in Last Year, Clerk's Report Shows; Divorces Lower

The number of civil and criminal cases handled in common pleas court grew substantially during the last 12 months, the annual report of Everett R. Grigsby, clerk of courts to the secretary of state, disclosed. The annual report was forwarded to the secretary of state from the clerk's office this week, covering the year June 30, 1930 to June 30, 1931.

During the year ending June 30, 1931, there were 582 civil and 101 criminal cases filed in the Marion county common pleas court as compared with 467 civil and 78 criminal cases filed during the year ending June 30, 1930, the report shows.

Docket Kept Clear

A comparable increase is also shown in the number of cases disposed of by George B. Scofield, common pleas judge. During the last year, 506 civil and 99 criminal cases were disposed of by the court. In the preceding 12 months, 470 civil and 70 criminal cases were written off the docket.

On June 30, 1931, there were 254 civil and 10 criminal cases pending in the court. The report shows that 197 civil and 10 criminal cases were pending July 1, 1930.

Fewer cases were appealed to the higher courts from the common pleas court this year than last, according to the report. Nineteen civil and two criminal cases were carried up during the last 12 months, as compared with 26 civil and no criminal cases appealed or prosecuted in error during the year ending June 30, 1930.

Three hundred and twenty-three civil judgments and verdicts totalling $641,660.06 and two indeterminate sentences in Mansfield reformatory, and two jail sentences for one day and another for 30 days, were meted out from the common pleas bench by Judge Scofield and jury.

Thirty-nine inquests by the coroner during the last 12 months are shown in the report. These include three homicides, one suicide, 17 accidents and 18 deaths in which the cause was natural or unknown.

Jury Fees $3,155

Jury fees aggregating $3,155.41 were paid by the common pleas court, including $2,478.94 to petit jurors in civil cases, $728.47 to grand jurors and $528 to petit jurors in criminal cases.

Five indictments against five persons for crimes against the person were returned by grand juries in the last 12 months, according to the report. Two were convicted, two were acquitted and one is pending. Of the two convicted, both were imprisoned and neither has been placed on probation. Crimes against the person include murder, assault, blackmail and robbery. Two of the five indictments for crimes against the person were for robbery, one for assault. Two others are listed miscellaneous.

Crimes against property, including burglary, larceny, stealing and associated offenses, were more numerous. Sixty indictments against 42 persons were returned by grand juries in crimes of this nature. Thirty-nine persons were convicted, three were acquitted, indictments against three were noted and cases of two are still pending. Twenty-six were imprisoned and three were on probation. Both first and imprisoned. Eleven were placed on probation. Fees paid attorneys for defendants appointed by the court totalled $490.

Of the 66 indictments for offenses against property, 29 charged burglary, seven charged issuing of worthless checks, six others charged automobile theft.

Marion county had only two cases last year classified as criminal offenses against public peace, health, justice and police. Both were probation offenses against two persons. One was convicted and fined and the charge against the other was nolle.

made in 105 of the 116 divorces action filed last year. Excessive cruelty was charged in nine cases.

The BIG FOUR wishes to acknowledge with gratitude the fine spirit of cooperation shown by business men and citizens generally of the communities located on its lines.

The trying problems during recent months have been met with fine understanding of the interdependence of the railroad and the communities.

The support given to the railroads by local business houses is a demonstration of intelligent interest.

THOMAS SPLITS CIGARET FEES

County Auditor Makes Distribution of License Money.

The county auditor's annual distribution of cigarette license receipts, which this year totaled $7,835.49, will be made Wednesday. Auditor Earl E. Thomas announced today.

The state will get $5,228.48, or 75 per cent of the total receipts. After the auditor's and treasurer's fees and refunds are paid, the auditor's distribution sheet shows Marion county gets the second largest share, of $871.42 and Marion city receives $688.40.

The distribution among the villages and townships follows: Cadonia, $24.14; Green Camp, $12.25; LaRue, $38.21; Morral, $12.25; Agosta, $6.12; Prospect, $24.59; Waldo, $12.25; Big Island township, $8.03; Grand Prairie town-ship, $6.12; Marion township, $5.11; Montgomery township, $5.73; Pleasant township, $13.82; Scott township, $6.12; Tully town-ship, $7.45.

The county auditor's and treasurer's offices each receive $78.35 in fees for handling the distribution of cigarette licenses. Refunds totaling $707.48 were paid 27 cigarette dealers in the county who suspended business during the last cigarette year leaving a total of $6,951.31 for distribution among the political subdivisions.

The money distributed came from the sale of cigarette licenses during the year May 5, 1930, to May 4, 1931. Of the total $490 came from 134 retailers who were in business May 4, 1931, and $735.49 came from 26 retailers who began business between May 5, 1930, and May 4, 1931.

Laws governing the annual distribution of cigarette license receipts provide that the state shall receive three-fourths of the total receipts after fees and refunds have been subtracted, and that districts including the city, villages and townships shall receive one-eighth, leaving one-eighth for the county.
